

Teacher in Astrophysics/Formation of the Universe

for the ProCredit Academy GmbH, a subsidiary of ProCredit Holding AG & Co. KGaA

Adult Education (Freelance)

The ProCredit Academy is seeking a qualified freelance teacher to join our faculty and teach in the humanities branch of our management development programme for a four-week period beginning in 2019. Our campus is located in Fürth, in the heart of Germany's beautiful and tranquil Odenwald region, and is a one-hour drive from the Frankfurt Airport. The position would entail teaching a one-week course on the formation of the universe to four different groups of students.

The ProCredit Academy is the international management training centre of the development-oriented ProCredit group, which consists of commercial banks for small and medium-sized enterprises (SMEs) with an operational focus on South Eastern and Eastern Europe. In addition to this regional focus, the ProCredit group also operates in South America and has a bank in Germany. ProCredit sets very high standards with regard to staff development. The ProCredit Academy provides a comprehensive and unique training and development programme for high-potential employees as well as middle and upper management.

It is worth noting that this course would need to be tailored to the needs of students who are not necessarily familiar with the topic.

Key responsibilities:

- Teach highly engaged and curious adults looking to develop both personally and professionally
- Design and develop a one-week course module and concept
- Develop teaching and learning materials

The successful candidate will have the following profile:

- University degree in astrophysics or a related discipline
- Relevant and demonstrable teaching/training experience
- Ability to inspire non-specialist students
- Ability to design concentrated and interactive teaching modules
- Ability to work in a dynamic and international environment
- Fluent in English
